

HELLHOUND

WHITEPAPER · VERSION 1.0 · OCTOBER 20, 2026

$HELL · THE DOG OF AMD · ON SOLANA

A memecoin paired with tokenized AMD stock. This is the whole idea, written down.

This paper is short because the idea is short. $HELL is a dog coin whose liquidity pool holds tokenized AMD stock instead of SOL, and every trade feeds the pile. Five minutes to read, one multiplication, no promises.

01 ABSTRACT

HELLHOUND ($HELL) is a memecoin on Solana named after PowerColor's Hellhound line of AMD Radeon graphics cards. Most dog coins trade against SOL or a stablecoin. $HELL trades against tokenized AMD stock.

That one choice does three things. $HELL is priced in AMD. It moves with $AMD, on top of its own moves. And every buy and sell pays a 2% fee in AMD into Hellhound's holdings.

There is no utility, no promised product, and no team allocation. There is a dog, a pile of AMD, and a counter on the homepage that shows the pile growing.

02 THE PROBLEM

Every dog coin so far has been backed by vibes. Vibes are fine. Vibes do not report quarterly earnings, ship graphics cards, or sell out on Newegg before lunch.

AMD does all three. And the AMD Radeon card with the best dog on the box, PowerColor's Hellhound, has been doing it since 2021 with no coin to its name. Until now.

03 THE HOUND

The PowerColor Hellhound Radeon RX 6600, with the box the dog came in.

Hellhound is AMD's strongest line of PowerColor Radeon graphics cards with a dog theme, launched in 2021. Hellhound is rated 4.9/5 stars as one of the best graphics cards in history. Over 500k units sold worldwide. AMD is pushing hard into AI & gaming and earned $35 billion in revenue in 2025.

04 HOW IT WORKS

1 THE POOL

$HELL lives in a PumpSwap liquidity pool on Solana. On the other side of that pool is not SOL. It is tokenized AMD stock. Inside the pool, $HELL is bought and sold with AMD.

2 THE PRICE

Because the pool is quoted in AMD, the dollar price of $HELL is the pool price times the AMD price. When $AMD goes up, so does $HELL, on top of its own moves. When AMD goes down, the same thing in reverse. The dog is on a leash, and the leash is tied to a stock.

3 THE FEE

Every trade pays a 2% fee in AMD. That AMD goes into Hellhound's holdings. More trades, more AMD. The counter on the homepage reads it straight from the chain every few minutes.

$$\text{$HELL IN USD} = \text{$HELL} / \text{AMD} \times \text{AMD} / \text{USD}$$

What \$HELL is not: a share of AMD. It is not backed by AMD stock and cannot be redeemed for it. You get a dog, not a dividend.

06 THE HOLDINGS

Hellhound's holdings are two piles of tokenized AMD. The liquidity pool is the AMD sitting on the other side of $HELL in the pool. Fees earned is the 2% paid in AMD on every trade since launch, claimed and unclaimed. Both are on-chain. These tiles read the same numbers as the homepage counter, refreshed every few minutes.
